At LONGi Solar Technology Co., Ltd., we are driven by our commitment to the planet and people and we stand with the solar industry in supporting the human rights of all workers. It is evident through our Code of Conduct and ethical values that we do not engage in or tolerate any form of forced labour, modern slavery or human trafficking.

LONGi took immediate action when questions arose on the supply chain of the solar industry. We built a strong brand over the last twenty years based on the quality of our products and we guard the integrity of our supply chain closely. We have devoted additional resources to strengthen our internal controls, oversight on our supply chain partners and covering all components sourced.

LONGi is one of the most comprehensive suppliers in the industry. We require all our suppliers to adhere to our Supplier's Code of Conduct which explicitly prohibits them to engage in any form of forced labour. We will continue to work hard constantly in ensuring the products supplied to us are free from forced labour.

Along with our internal work, our team is actively involved with industry efforts to develop a traceability protocol to improve not only LONGi's processes but also those of the industry as a whole.

LONGi has a long-standing commitment to basic human rights and actively supports efforts to prevent forced labour. We have always and will always comply with legislation and regulations and we look forward to working with employees, affiliates, suppliers and customers to ensure the solar industry respects and protects human rights.
